1. ABOUT DRISAG

At Drisag, innovation and craftsmanship are at the heart of how we create functional and inspiring interior solutions. From our production site in Herentals, we continuously invest in technologies that allow us to work more flexibly, sustainably, and locally.

A recent expansion of our cutting machine now enables us to process felt panels in-house, opening up a wide range of creative and acoustic applications. Our felt panels, made from at least 70% recycled PET bottles, are used in everything from lighting and storage accessories to pinboards, desk screens, room dividers, and wall or ceiling coverings. Combining aesthetics with acoustic performance, they contribute to more comfortable and well-balanced spaces.

Thanks to our local production, we can cut a wide variety of custom patterns into the felt, offering both visual character and enhanced acoustic properties. At the same time, we carefully optimize every cut to minimize waste, and remaining material is collected and reused in other products whenever possible. Even our production process reflects this hands-on mindset: our CEO, Niek, developed a custom vacuum system for the machine to make end-of-day clean-up more efficient.

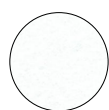

The result is a versatile felt collection that brings together sustainability, creativity, acoustic comfort, and authentic Belgian craftsmanship.
